THE EARLY HISTORY OF JACOB STAHL

By J. D. BERESFORD

This is a story dealing with the life, loves and friendships of a young man who, despite physical weakness and early mistakes, develops character but remains human.

The London Morning Post recommends this book "to all who like a brilliant psychological novel."

The Chicago Tribune says: "The book grips the reader with great strength, fascinates him by the keenness of its psychological analysis."

JACOB STAHL is a 513-page book, price $1.35 net.

THE OLD DANCE MASTER

By WM. ROMAIN PATERSON

Here is a character story that has been favorably compared to Warfield's great dramatic creation, "The Music Master."

The London Daily Telegraph says: "The book will be found absorbingly attractive. To readers who delight in that Dickensian touch of exaggeration the story will be found crowded with interest."

The New York Sun says: "The lightness of touch, the humor, and the wit of 'The Old Dance Master' will be thoroughly enjoyed. The separate scenes are as vivid and humorous as anything Dickens has written."

THE OLD DANCE MASTER is published at $1.25 net.

Second Edition Required Before Publication

We expected to publish on May fifteenth the new story by

RIDGWELL CULLUM

but the advance orders were so large that we were compelled to go to press with a large second edition in order to fill all orders on the day of publication. We predict that will soon be among the "best sellers," as we consider it the best story which Mr. Cullum has yet written, and when you remember

THE TRAIL OF THE AXE

"The Watchers of the Plains" and "The Sheriff of Dyke Hole," you will realize that this is pretty high praise. Stock it at once if you have not already ordered it.

DR. HENRY C. McCOOK

the author of "The Latimers," that notable story of the Scotch-Irish in Western Pennsylvania, has won for himself new laurels in

QUAKER BEN

A Tale of Colonial Pennsylvania in the time of Thomas Penn. Every reader of "The Latimers" will remember with what fervor Dr. McCook delineated the figures in that drama. In QUAKER BEN he does for the Friends what he did in "The Latimers" for the Scotch-Irish, and fully sustains the high standard set in his first novel. Those of your patrons who enjoy a good, clean, wholesome, historical story will like QUAKER BEN. Recommend it.

Annual Library Index 1910

THE ANNUAL LIBRARY INDEX for 1910, just published, has been made a much more important volume than heretofore. The number of periodicals indexed is now 123, covering most of those included in the five-yearly Poole's Index and not covered heretofore in any of the Annual Indexes. The volume also includes the Index to General Literature, or Essay Index, supplementing the five-yearly A. L. A. Index; the bibliographic record of 1910; and the necrology of authors deceased in 1910. The index to dates, affording a clue to the contents of daily newspapers, not otherwise obtainable, is a feature of great usefulness.

To these usual divisions, there is continued the select list of all the more important public and semi-public libraries in the United States and Canada, which includes this year fully 1200 entries, giving the location, name, librarian's name, number of volumes, accessions in the past library year, annual income and expenditure. Under each state is also given the information as to its library commission, library association and library clubs.

 An entirely new feature in this volume is a list of Private Collectors of Books in the U. S., with mention of the specialty in collecting of each individual. It contains nearly 1200 names and addresses arranged geographically, and represents a year's work in gathering the material from well posted correspondents in all parts of the country.

Advance Orders Solicited for FOUR IMPORTANT NOVELS
 for September Issue

A WATCHER OF THE SKIES

By GUSTAVE F. MERTINS

Colored frontispiece. 12mo. Net, $1.25

A young New York clubman loses in a taxicab accident both his memory and his bride. His subsequent career constitutes a curious and thrilling story, in which detectives, wireless telegraphy, but above all the power of hypnotism possessed by a leading character, each have a part. The plot offers something refreshingly different from the ordinary run of novels.

MONNA LISA: THE QUEST OF THE WOMAN SOUL

By GUGLIELMO SCALA

Colored frontispiece. 12mo. Net, $1.00

An unusual idea has been carried out in this romance, which purports to be a translation of a journal by Leonardo da Vinci, painter of the great portrait now hanging in the Louvre. The main theme is an account of the development of a mutual passion between the artist and Monna Lisa, which makes the book an absorbing tale of love, admirably told.

RAINIER of the LAST FRONTIER

By JOHN MARVIN DEAN

Colored frontispiece. 12mo. Net, $1.20

A narrative of the activities of a "war special" in the Philippines during the Aguinaldo insurrection. The story concerns also the affairs of a charming girl, an army nurse, whose hand and heart the newspaper man wins over many obstacles. The whole work vibrates with the spirit of romance and adventure.

ON THE IRON AT BIG CLOUD

By FRANK L. PACKARD

Colored frontispiece. 12mo. Net, $1.25

This book is sure of a warm welcome from all who like rousing good railroad stories. Royal Carleton, superintendent of the Rocky Mountain division of a big trunk line, is the head of a force of rough-and-ready heroes whose exploits make great reading as chronicled by one who knows his subject from A to Z. Among railroad yarns this work will take and hold a top-notch place.

A Success!

"A vivid story of a girl's life in South Africa"

THE CLAW

By CYNTHIA STOCKLEY, author of "Poppy," etc.

From James L. Ford's review in the N. Y. Herald:

"In my opinion THE CLAW is destined to become, if not a 'best seller,' a book for which there will be a great demand this summer."

We believe that Mr. Ford is right, for the sales have already begun to justify his opinion.

The advance orders were so much larger than we had anticipated that we were forced to print a second large edition before publication (May 6th), and within a week from that date a third edition was necessary. This third edition is almost exhausted, and a fourth will be ready immediately.

NOTES IN SEASON.

JOHN REED SCOTT's new novel, "In Her Own Right," was published this week by the Lippincotts. Mr. Scott has set the scenes of his story in and around Annapolis of today, and Clarence F. Underwood has contributed his usual clever illustrations which have been reproduced in color.

THE MISSION HOUSE PRESS are the publishers of a limited edition of "The Sermons and Conferences of John Tauler, the Illumined Doctor." The many who revolt against the materialism of the times will find delight in the indefinable spiritual charm of the great German mystic and preacher of the thirteenth century.

THE CENTURY COMPANY will publish June 24, "Thorpe's Way," by Morley Roberts, an English writer better known in England than in this country. "Thorpe's Way" is a satire on middle-class social conventionalities and a jolly love story, of a style to invite comparison with George Bernard Shaw. "Gloomy Fanny," the hero of some of Mr. Roberts's short stories, is a character in the book.

IN view of the coronation of King George v. timely announcement is made by John Lane Company, who promise for publication "The Land of Teck and Its Neighborhood," by S. Baring-Gould. The Swabian Alb is very little visited by tourists, yet it is full of interest for the fact of its being the birthplace of the present Queen of England. The volume contains a frontispiece portrait in color of her Majesty, from a painting by Angeli, four plates in color, forty-eight half-tones and a map.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS have ready Charles G. Wheeler's "A Shorter Course in Woodworking," a practical manual on the subject for either home or school; "The Republican Tradition in Europe," by Herbert A. L. Fisher, describing the course of republican ideas in Europe from the fall of the Roman Empire to the foundation of the Republic of Portugal; and Alexandre Moret's "In the Time of the Pharaohs," a non-technical, popular account of the ancient Egyptian civilization and of some of the difficulties that present themselves to the present-day investigator.

THE two new novels of George W. Jacobs & Company appeal, respectively, to the many who love the energy of the breezy West and the many who love the quaint atmosphere of Colonial Pennsylvania. There are many indeed who will delight in both "The Trail of the Axe," Ridgwell Cullum's forceful story of lumber camps and forest wilds, humanized by the introduction of a very spirited little heroine, and Dr. Henry C. McCook's "Quaker Ben," an historical novel in which the Friends are shown with the true delineation of the penetrating artist. Certainly both books will appeal to those who seek relief from the pseudo-society novel, artificial in setting and indiscriminating in characterization.

DOUBLEDAY, PAGE & COMPANY have prepared a little booklet giving a comprehensive idea of "The Children's Library of Work and Play," the ten volume set of books on manual training covering practically every branch of indoor and outdoor occupation. The cover and title-page of each volume, both in color, are given in facsimile, and many of the interesting illustrations showing the children at work—or play?—are reproduced. A full description of the books, with extracts showing the half-story form in which they are written, and brief accounts of the authors, is prefaced by a few pages which show the conditions which have done away with the good old fashion of "apprenticing." In recent years manual labor had fallen into disrepute; now we are realizing the soundness of the earlier point of view and manual training has become an important feature of the modern educational programme.

Weekly Record of New Publications

The entry is transcribed from title page when the book is sent by publisher for record. Books received, unless of minor importance, are given descriptive annotation. Prices are added except when not supplied by publisher or obtainable only on specific request. The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory. c. after the date indicates that the book is copyrighted; if the copyright date differs from the imprint date, the year of copyright is added.

A colon after initial designates the most usual given name, as: A: Augustus; B: Benjamin; C: Charles; D: David; E: Edward; F: Frederick; G: George; H: Henry; I: Isaac; J: John; L: Louis; N: Nicholas; P: Peter; R: Richard; S: Samuel; T: Thomas; W: William.

Sizes are designated as follows: F. (folio: over 30 centimeters high); Q. (4to: under 30 cm.); O. (8vo: 25 cm.); D. (12mo: 20 cm.); S. (16mo: 17½ cm.); T. (24mo: 15 cm.); Fl. (32mo: 12½ cm.); Fz. (48mo: 10 cm.). Sq., obl., nar., designate square, oblong, narrow. For books not received sizes are given in Roman numerals, 4°, 8°, etc.

Abbott, Lyman, D.D.

America in the making. New Haven, Ct., Yale Univ., '11. (Je3) c. 7+233 p. D. $1.15 n.

The American problem is approached by this well-known author from the religious rather than the secular standpoint. Believing "there is a power not ourselves which makes for righteousness" and that the clearest interpretation of that ideal which history affords is furnished by the teaching of the prophets of the Old Testament and of Jesus and His apostles in the New Testament, he uses this basis for these lectures delivered to the undergraduates of Yale University. Index.

Allen, Alice E.

Joe, the circus boy; il. by Etheldred Breeze. Bost., Page, '11. (Je3) c. '09-'11. 97 p. D. (Cosy corner ser.) 50 c.

Joe runs away from the circus which has been his home ever since he can remember. He meets a boy named Richard Davis, who has run away from home to join the circus. Joe persuades him not to and the two boys find their way to Richard's home. Here Joe enters on an entirely new life and in the end gains Fritz, his performing dog at the circus, and a mother who establishes his identity through a locket he has always carried with him.

Allen, J: Little Moffat.

Barbour, Ralph H:

The house in the hedge; il. by Gertrude A. Kay. N. Y., Moffat, Yard, '11. (Je3) c. 251 p. D. $1.10 n.

The mystery attendant upon the strange man so carefully guarded against all inquirers in the house the other side of the hedge is finally solved to the satisfaction of the neighborhood, but in its solution the breezy and very modern heroine loses a priceless possession. The story of this loss, which proves irrevocable, and what she gets back in the last chapter, from the hands of the mysterious man, makes just such a dainty tale as we expect from Mr. Barbour. A second love story also runs through the book.

A kingdom of dreams; with a front. by E. S. Hodgson. N. Y., Cassell, '11. (Je3) c. 6+344 p. 12°, $1.20 n.

Bennett, Enoch Arnold.

The book of Carlotta; being a revised edition (with new preface) of Sacred and profane love. N. Y., Doran, ['11.] c. (Je3) 11+3-294 p. D. $1.20 n.

Carlotta of the Five Towns lives a life of tragedy from the time when she meets and loves Diaz, the great musician, until she dies suddenly when he is away from her. In fact, the end of the book is based upon the sudden death of Sibyl Sanderson, with its hidden romance. Carlotta has genius, and has learned to dare to think truly. Some reading which she has done develops her character a trifle prematurely. She meets and is irresistibly attracted to Diaz, but leaves him after their confessed love. Finding herself alone in the world, she leaves the Five Towns and goes to London, where she wins fame and wealth by her beauty and talent. Her second love affair ends also in tragedy. After six years of wandering loneliness she meets Diaz again when he has lost his prestige through excessive drink. She devotes her life to re-establishing him, and writes the libretto for his first opera. She dies without the marriage she has hoped for, and knowing Diaz better than she seems to, we cannot help but be glad for this ending.

The great offender. N. Y., Brentano's, '11. (Je3) 313 p. 12°, $1.35 n.

Buck, Jirah Dewey.

The new avatar and the destiny of the soul; the findings of natural science reduced to practical studies in psychology. Cin., R. Clarke Co., '11. (Je3) c. 24+226 p. O. $2 n.

Dr. Buck is a lecturer on pathology and psychology, and author of "Mystic masonry," "A study of man," etc. The subject of "Avatars" (which means "the descent of a Deity to earth and his incarnation as a man") is one that is rather new to our Western mind. But in the Orient it is a study of interest and importance. Dr. Buck has explained the subject fully and shows that, according to all "signs" and "portents" and conditions, a "New Avatar" is now due in the Western world.

Burrell, D. Ja.

At the gate beautiful; the story of a day. N. Y., Am. Tract Soc., ['11.] (Je3) c. 3-71 p. front. 12°, 50 c.

Capes, Bernard.

Gilead Balm, knight errant; his adventures in search of truth; with 8 illustrations. N. Y., Baker & T., '11. (Je3) 320 p. D. $1.25 n.

Gilead Balm had everything to recommend him as an exceedingly attractive young man, except money. Even this comes in a huge lump from an unknown relative. Then Gilead, caring less for accumulating money than for experience, and succoring the needy establishes a Truth Bureau and makes it his one business to right the wrongs of applicants. His first succor is given a persecuted young girl named Vera Halifax, who becomes his amanuensis and, in many cases, his adviser and rescuer. Around her hangs the romantic interest of the book, and she, his clerk and Gilead have many exciting adventures and mysteries to solve.

Comfort, Will Levington.

She buildeth her house; with a front by Martin Justice. Phil., Lippincott, 11. (Je3) c. 352 p. D. $1.25 n.

By the author of "Routledge rides alone." Paula Linster, a newspaper woman, writes a review of Quentin Charter's book which leads to the beginning of a correspondence between them. They are greatly attracted to each other, but before their destiny is fulfilled they have to overcome certain formidable destructive forces. The woman's enemy is the occultist, Bellingham, a terrible figure, who tries to ensnare her very soul. The man's foes are the rending animal forces of self which he has to overcome. The climax of the story is reached in Martinique at the time of Mt. Pelée's eruption.

Conway, Placid.

Saint Thomas Aquinas of the Order of Preachers (1225-1274); a biographical study of the angelic doctor; with 5 illustrations. N. Y., Longmans, 11. (Je3) 10+119 p. S. (Friar saints ser. Dominican lives; ed. by Bede Jarrett and C. M. Antony.) 50 c. n.

"God is wonderful in his saints." Such a biography as this is especially opportune in our day, as the revival of scholastic learning in the domains of philosophy and theology, of which St. Thomas was the highest exponent, while he stands supreme as the patron of the Christian schools.

Cooke, Rev. G: Alb.

The progress of revelation. N. Y., Scribner, [imported,] 11. (Je3) 9+200 p. 8°, $1.75 n.

Cooke, L: Jos.

Dennen, Grace Atherton.

The dawn meadow. Bost., Badger, 11. (Je3) c. 181 p. D. $1 n.

A house party of Californians is locked by the earthquake in a mountain meadow of the Sierras. They had, on the whole, a pretty jolly imprisonment, and the love story of Ethel Stanton, one of the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Onverell, progresses in favor of Charley Strong in spite of the rivalry of Robert Forrest, to a very happy ending. All lose their fortunes in the earthquake but they "start over again" with the intrepidity of the true Westerner.

Derr, E. Z., M.D.

The uncaused being and the criterion of truth; to which is appended an examination of the views of Sir Oliver Lodge concerning the ether of space. Bost., Sherman, French, 11. (Je3) c. 7+110 p. D. $1 n.

This book is a criticism on Prof. William James' "Pluralistic universe," in which his declaration for a finite God strikes at the foundation of Monotheism. The finite Being Professor James depicts is shorn of the chief attributes of Deity—creative power and omnipotence—and there is no good reason why there should not be a multitude of such limited beings. The arguments in this book are concerned with the existence of a Creator and will not be satisfactory to all minds, the author says.

Dickens, Mammie.

Biography of Dickens. N. Y., Cassell, '11. (Je3) c. 180 p. 12°, $1 n.

Elliott, Fs. Perry.

The haunted pajamas; with il. by Edm. Frederick. Indianapolis. Bobbs-Merrill, '11. (Je3) c. 355 p. D. $1.25 n.

Richard Lightnut is a rich young New Yorker who is not over-endowed with brains. A friend in China sends him a suit of pajamas made of a most wonderful silk, which have the marvellous power of changing the appearance of any living thing that puts them on into the outward semblance of someone who has previously worn them. No law governs the selection of this appearance and poor Dicky and his friend Billings are involved in some very queer adventures before they discover the cause and burn the pajamas.

When the red gods call. N. Y., Moffat, Yard, '11. (Je3) c. 364 p. D. $1.35 n.

The title is taken from Kipling's poem, "The feet of the young men." Hugh Lynch, an Irishman, full of lawlessness and courage, has sought fortune in New Guinea. He marries a native girl who is carried off by one Sanderson. Hugh follows them, kills Sanderson, but the girl is drowned. Later he meets Stephanie Hammond, daughter of the Governor; they love each other, are married, and are on their way to Australia for a wedding trip when a former admirer of Stephanie's turns up with evidence of the murder and arrests Lynch. Stephanie returns to England without again seeing her husband, and it is ten years before they meet, and through a series of thrilling adventures find their lost happiness. The descriptions of the bush in New Guinea with its cannibal tribes are vivid and unusual, while in Hugh Lynch we have a striking picture of the typical adventurer, whose daring and hatred of civilization's shackles make them the pioneers in all unsettled countries.

Harper's camping and scouting; an outdoor guide for American boys. N. Y., Harper, '11. (Je3) c. 16+397 p. pls. O. (Harper's practical books.) $1.75.

The idea of doing for one's self is the keynote of this book of camping, woodcraft, and various phases of the outdoor life which has grown so enormously in favor of recent years. It is intended to show American boys and girls how to make camps at their own homes or abroad, how to prepare for outdoor life, where to go, how to choose a camp-site and make camp, how to live in camp, how to dress and cook and eat, how to amuse themselves, how to take care of themselves in the woods and on the trail or river, and, together with these general subjects, there are explanations adapted to the very different kinds of camps which appear throughout our country every summer. There are boys and girls who find infinite pleasure in pitching home-made tents in the lee of their own houses, or in building shelters of tree-huts in their own grounds. There are helpful suggestions for them in this book as well as for those who camp farther afield. The selection and also the making of various articles of camp equipment are fully explained.

The weavers; a drama of the forties; tr. from the German by Mary Morison. N. Y., Huebsch, '11. (Je3) 8+148 p. D. $1 n.

This prose drama was one that made the most profound impression in all countries. It is a stirring delineation of the condition of the Silesian workers and their revolt against the forces that were crushing them and is symbolic of the consciousness to which labor everywhere is awakening. For some years the book has been out of print.

Hawkins, Anthony Hope, ["Anthony Hope," pseud.]

Mrs. Maxon protests; il. by R. F. Schabelitz. N. Y., Harper, '11. (Je3) c. 361 p. D. $1.35 n.

A story of society and the effect its complex moral code has on a woman. Winnie Maxon finds life with her overbearing, dictatorial husband insupportable and tells him she will no longer live with him. At the home of some free-thinking friends she meets another man, who falls in love with her and she goes to live with him, only to find that he grows very tired of the situation. The book is concerned with the development of the woman's character as she strains against the rigid laws surrounding English society and her final realization that freedom is not possible or desirable in the way she had sought it.

Hyatt, Stanley Portal.

The law of the bolo. Bost., Estes, '11. (Je3) 7+271 p. D. $1.35 n.

The law of the bolo runs throughout the Philippine Islands. The law is extremely simple, the terrible two-foot-long knife, with which a Filipino can cleave his enemy from collar-bone to waist is its instrument and its doctrine is that the spoil shall go to the man with longest reach. This story, by the author of "The little brown brother," tells how one Felizardo became a ladron or outlaw in the mountains, and for thirty-six years acknowledged only the law of the bolo. At last he made peace with the American government, largely through the instrumentality of Basil Hayle, captain in the constabulary.

Domestic science; a text in cooking and syllabus in sewing prepared for use in the Kansas City elementary schools, yet eminently fitted for home work; containing in untechnical language all the fundamental theories of foods and their functions; together with more than 200 recipes and 30 il. designed to demonstrate those theories and to make a comprehensive cook book for school, college, and family use. 2d ed., rev. and enl. Kansas City, Mo., Burton Pub., '11. (Je3) c. '10-'11. 153 p. front. D. 60 c.

Johnson, Owen.

The Tennessee Shad; chronicling the rise and fall of the firm of Doc Macnooder and the Tennessee Shad. N. Y., Baker & T., '11. (Je3) c. 307 p. pls. D. $1.20 n. The "Tennessee Shad," one of the Lawrenceville schoolboys, gets his name because he is so thin; he is described as a pair of animated scissors, with his coat floating from his shoulder blades as though floating from a rake, and his "lengthened head seemed more like a cross-section than a complete structure." What he lacks in physical quantity is made up in brain quality, and his imagination combined with "Doc Macnooder's" graspings for money make a remarkable firm for all kinds of jolly swindling. When the boys are all "wise" to the firm and its methods, Montague Skinner, from New York, known as "Uncooked Beefsteak," arrives with his valet and self-complicity. He is the capital on which the boys keep their firm rolling in prosperity through a number of funny chapters. Catastrophe overtakes the trust in the end but not until the reader has had his money's worth of pranks.

Lin Shao-Yang.

A Chinese appeal to Christendom concerning Christian missions. N. Y., Putnam, '11. (Je3) c. 4+321 p. O. $1.50.

The author is a Chinese official who returned to China after a boyhood spent in the other hemisphere. He believes that the Christianity being preached in China is already outgrown in Christian countries, for the missionaries are not students of "higher criticism," and hold to creeds and dogmas which Western civilization is rapidly discarding. Dispassionate, and friendly in tone, and obviously the work of one who has deeply studied his subject, the book merits attentive consideration.

Dawn Van Rensselaer, living in New York about 1826, is brought up in a Quaker school, hating her stepmother and fearing her father. As soon as she is out of school, a marriage is arranged for her with a man she dreads, but the day before the wedding it is discovered that he is already married. His younger brother takes his place; Dawn's stepmother does not tell her of the change, and as the girl never raises her eyes she does not discover whom she has married until after the wedding. Her mother-in-law heaps reproaches upon her and she runs away and is only found and made happy by her husband after many weary months of search.

Macdonald, Loren B.

Life in the making; an approach to religion through the method of modern pragmatism. Bost., Sherman, French, '11. (Je3) c. 223 p. O. $1.20 n.

A student of the late Professor James and a believer with him in the pragmatic principle as a test for all truths, the author makes a serious attempt to apply that principle to the aspects of religious life. Constructive and reverent, carrying a message of hope, this book aims to help people who are in a state of religious doubt and indifference, or are weighed down by a sense of the mystery of life and seek for light other than in the established forms of faith.

This well-known author of many books along the line of literary criticism here writes a text-book of metrical rhetoric for the beginners, to serve as an introduction to the study of English versification. Its aim is to explain to the inquirer the technic of verse-making and to show how the poets have been able to achieve their effects. Appendix and index.

Mill, J: Stuart.

The subjection of women; with a foreword by Carrie Chapman Catt. N. Y., Stokes, [11.] (Je3) c. 15+223 p. D. 60 c. n.

"The object of this essay is to explain . . . that the principle which regulates the existing social relations between the two sexes—the legal subordination of one sex to the other—is wrong in itself, and now one of the chief hindrances to human improvement; and that it ought to be replaced by a principle of perfect equality, admitting no power or privilege on the one side, nor disability on the other."

Montgomery, Lucy Maud.

The Story Girl; with front. and cover in color by G: Gibbs. Bost., L. C. Page, '11. (Je3) c. 365 p. D. $1.50.

The environment is again Prince Edward Island and the story and incidents possess the same simplicity which characterizes Miss Montgomery's earlier books, "Anne of Green Gables," "Kilnsey of the orchard," etc. The Story Girl, herself—Sara Stanley—delights and thrills her listeners with her weird tales of ghosts "and things." She tells in wondrous voice of "The mystery of the golden milestone," "How kissing was discovered," and of just how the milky way happened into the heavens. You feel the spell of the old orchard, where she and her playmates spent such happy days, and with Felix, Dan, and Beverly you live again with her the "tragedies of childhood."

Moore, Addison.

Hindrances to happiness. N. Y., Doran, [11.] (Je3) c. 97 p. D. bds., 50 c. n.

Porter, Eleanor H.

Miss Billy; with front in colour from a painting by Griswold Tyng. Bost., L. C. Page, '11. (Je3) c. 8+356 p. D. $1.25 n.

Billy is the name of a charmingly pretty girl. When she first appears she is a harum-scarum hoyden, who unknowingly succeeds in completely upsetting the quiet and dignity of the three Henshaw brothers in their old Beacon Street home. Then she grows up and before she knows romance has entered her life, but which of the Henshaws is to be her hero she has some difficulty in deciding.

Quick, Herb., i.e., J. Herb.

Yellowstone nights. Indianapolis, Bobbs-Merrill, [11.] (Je3) c. 345 p. D. $1.25.

Another volume by the author of "Alladin & Co.," "Virginia of the air lanes," etc. The Bride and Groom, the Minor Poet, the Professor, the Colonel, the Artist, the Driver, and the Hired Man form a party of campers in Yellowstone Park. Brief and graphic descriptions of the Park's wonders make up the thread binding together the stories which the campers tell. Some of these stories—more especially the Bride's, the Groom's, the Artist's, the Professor's and the Colonel's—are original and have humor of the grotesque sort. A lot of able-bodied lies are told, and charged up to "Jim Bridger" by the Driver.

Rawie, H:

The sphinx catechism. Balt., [H: Rawie, 910 American Bldg., '11.] (Je3) c. 234 p. D. (Science of value.) $1 n.

This book comprises 608 questions addressed to the sphinx of history, concerning the riddle of industry, with answers. The work is based upon a new and original premise in political economy, namely, that labor is not the cause of value, but value is the cause of labor: the cause of money, and the cause of wealth and of all social development.

Mr. Scull was field manager of Col. C. J. Jones's expedition to East Africa. This expedition was undertaken to prove that our western cowboy could rope and capture the wild animals of the African jungle. Colonel Roosevelt, in a preface to the book, writes that "no hunting trip which ever took place in Africa was better worthy of commemoration. . . . The feats in roping lion, rhino, giraffe and other animals were extraordinary performances, and showed a cool gallantry and prowess which should rejoice the hearts of all men who have known the West and who have felt that the old-style plainsman, and his more modern representative, the expert cowpuncher, are fit to grapple with any emergency of wild life."

The life and letters of Martin Luther. Bost., Houghton Mifflin, '11. (Je3) c. 16+490 p. (42 p. bibl.) il. pors. O. $3.50 n. Dr. Smith, author of "Luther's table talk," is a painstaking historian with a grasp of history in its larger aspects. In writing this book he has drawn from a considerable amount of new material which has come to light in the libraries of Europe, and which has not before been correlated. Luther as a great character, rather than as a great theologian, is pictured, and to this end copious extracts from wonderfully self-revealing documents have been included.

Author is president of Peace Institute, Raleigh, N. C. The work opens with a brief and thorough treatise on the art of poetics, a theme rarely treated in text books of poetry. The work of each poet is prefaced by a short biographical sketch, each selection characterized and followed by questions for study, and for the use of the teacher. To facilitate the study of the poems, the lines are numbered.

Strange, Shirley.

A superfluous woman's rosary; original paragraphs and verse, and selected quotations; one for each day in a year. Bost., Everett Pub., ['11.] (Je3) c. 122 p. T. cl. bds., 50 c.

This is a diary of a woman who calls herself superfluous. One cannot imagine that adjective to be applicable to one who shows by her own aphorisms and quotations such a sense of humor and good cheer, mixed with a pleasant shrewdness of judgment.

Stringfield, T.: ["Two Braids," pseud.]

Captured by the Apaches; forty years with this savage band of Indians; a true story by "Two Braids" (Tommy Stringfield), who was taken captive in 1870, and liberated in 1909. Hamilton, Tex., Herald Pr., ['11.] (Je3) c. 65 p. il. pors. 8°, 50 c.

Strange Siberia along the Trans-Siberian railway; a journey from the Great Wall of China to the sky-scrappers of Manhattan. N. Y., Eaton & M., ['11.] (Je3) c. 260 p. S. $1 n.

The author, after intimate acquaintance with the Far East, describes a journey from the Great Wall, through coveted Manchuria, with glimpses of the treasures of its ancient capital, of contested Port Arthur, and composite Harbin. He describes Siberian cities off the main line of travel, with surprising discoveries of museums, high schools and university, bacteriological institute, department stores, and many a Yankee notion. The reader feels the sweep of great waterways, the charm of the forest primeval, and takes a trip on Mother Volga. Informing chapters tell the history of the country, of immigrants, exiles, and convicts, and of the Siberian Cortez. Index.

Thompson, Rev. J. M.

Miracles in the New Testament. [N. Y., Longmans,] '11. (Je3) 15+236 p. D. $1 n.

The main part of this book consists of a critical examination of the miracle stories of the New Testament, leading to the hypothesis that the original events underlying those traditions need not be regarded as miraculous. This is prefaced by an attempt to define the belief in miracles, and followed by an estimate of some of the theological results of its rejection. Author is Fellow and Dean of Divinity of S. Mary Magdalen College, Oxford.

The job secretary; an impression. N. Y., Longmans, '11. (Je3) 275 p. D. $1.20 n.

By the author of "Out of due time," "Great possessions," etc. The scene is laid in London and is concerned with the writing of a novel by Frank Norbury. His secretary has to go away and he is obliged to get a temporary one. His novel tells the history of an unhappy marriage, and unconsciously it develops into the life story of his secretary, his intimate friend, and another woman. What he does when he discovers the resemblance between the real and the fictitious characters and how his own marriage just escapes wreckage on the same rocks, closes the tale.

"RUMMAGE SALES" FOR BOOK STORES.

MR. MACAULAY, whose suggestive outline of "co-operation in competition" was one of the most valuable features of the recent convention, never had a more clean-cut example of that kind of competition than was afforded by the stationers of St. Louis a little over a month ago.

Under the auspices of the St. Louis Stationers' Club the retail stationers of that city put through a co-operative "rummage sale" that in the spirit shown and success achieved was noteworthy.

Every member of the club had a lot of merchandise lying on his shelves, which he had inventoried every year as salable, and yet never seemed able to dispose of. Some may have laid there for years, during which time the owner paid rent for the space it occupied, insurance on it, and for labor in caring for same. In many cases he would have been glad to sell the goods at cost or even below to get his money out of it.

But even the preparatory listing of their "dead" stock was not as easy a task as might be supposed. Some was either unidentified on the market, or was so "dead" that it was hard to place a proper value on it. Nevertheless each dealer went through his entire stock and listed all "dead" or over-stock.

When such lists were completed they were circulated among the trade, and the goods there listed were offered for sale at factory cost and below. In a great many cases dealers found that their competitors were carrying goods that they could buy advantageously. One of the notable points was that many dealers were carrying items as dead stock for which their competitors had a good sale.

After this preliminary sorting out Mr. Curtiss, of the Woodward & Tiernan Printing Co., who, by the way, had the largest "dead" list, agreed to take the remaining "dead" stock of each house, combine it into one temporary store and offer it for sale to the public. He further agreed to assume all expense, such as rent, labor, advertising, etc., with the understanding that he would receive 20 per cent. of the sales. This plan seemed the most practical and was adopted. A committee of three was appointed to co-operate with Mr. Curtiss.

Mr. Curtiss immediately rented the ground floor on the corner of Ninth and Locust Streets, a very well lighted store, something like 125 x 150 feet. The sale was advertised extensively in many ways, both in St. Louis and nearby towns. Inserts were inclosed in the mails and large posters were conspicuously displayed throughout the city.

Sam Burgess, former manager of the John L. Bolland Stationery Company, was manager of the sale. Each house was given a letter, and as all goods were marked it was very easy to identify each article's owner of the combined stock.

Practically every item covered by the stationery trade was represented in the vast assortment. There was anything from pens, pencils and erasers, to desks, safes, filing cabinets and rotary copiers. The value of the goods exceeded $12,000.

Goods were sold for cash only, and none were exchanged or delivered.

The sale was on during the regular business hours, and the greatest volume of business was done during the noon hour, during which time it was necessary to almost double the force of twenty clerks.

Daily statements were issued to the dealers, so that they might keep in touch with the progress and amount of the sale; it also afforded the opportunity to re-mark goods that seemed to sell slow. This proved effectual.

The stock was arranged on large tables with each article marked in plain figures. The daily topic of discussion among business men was the "Rummage Sale." Many buyers were enthusiastic at the opportunity to purchase many of their wants at a low figure. New systems for their business were devised, by their coming into contact with things that they thought never existed before.

The various trade members gave their support loyally throughout the sale. Many made it a point to spend their noon hour at the "Rummage" headquarters, helping out during the rush hours. In short the sale was, from the stationers' point of view, a grand success, and in many ways.

Of course, the moral of this sale to booksellers is clear. Book stores as a class accumulate dead stock in a most amazing fashion. Inability to dispose of it—inability which gen-

First come the university bulletins. A few years ago each official publication of the college was printed and issued separately, but nowadays, for economy in mailing, they are all classed as succeeding numbers of a series of bulletins, parts of a periodical publication. This list comprises the annual catalogue, reports of the president and treasurer, pamphlets on entrance requirements and various bits of "literature" incidental to the conduct of the registrar's office. Unofficial university literature includes various publi-
